IN THE SOCIAL REALM

Love is a hunter-boy,
Who makes young hearts his prey
And in his nets of joy
Ensnares them night and day.
In vain concealed they lie—
Love tracks them everywhere;
In vain aloft they fly—
Love shoots them flying there.

But 'tis his joy most sweet,

But 'tis his joy must say.
At early dawn to trace
The print of Beauty's feet
And give the trembler chase,
And most he loves through snow
To trace those footsteps fair,
For them the boy doth know
None tracked before him there,

The lecture given last Thursday evening by Admiral Weister in the Y. M. C. The tobacco market is lively and hustling again, and business on a considerably larger scale than usual is reported. The opening up of the weather is distinctly favorable for handling the weed, and the prospect for the new week is bright. The roads are in very bad condition, however, and some serious interference may come from this quarter.

The week chosed on Friday with large sales, making a total for the week of 45,000 pounds. Mr. Hazell, of Shockoe, says he had a fine sale on Friday, selling 63,800 pounds of tobacco, for an average of $7.55 for everything on the filor. A Popular Boarding-House.

A Popular Boarding-House.

A Virginia woman has made her boarding house in this city highly popular with old-fashloned corn pone. A little meal, a little water, a little salt—that's all. The meal of the South is ground in the water mill, slowly and exceeding fine. When sifted and wet, it sticks togother in a compact mass, and is a beautiful bread when cooked. Northern meal is killa-dried and granulated; to induce it to form into pones it is necessary to mix flour with it. It is not fit to eat before or after mixing. Our Virginian orders her meal by the ton from the mill that clicked on her father's plantation when she was a child. There is no dyspepsia in that sort. You can't buy it in New York; no use trying.—New York Press.

Why Men Forget to Mail Letters. Why Men Forget to Mail Letters.

A feminine sociologist has at last discovered not only an explanation why men forget to mail letters entrusted to them by their wives, but also an excuse for it that is complimentary to the menwhich is just like a woman for all the world, however unlike a sociologist it may be. She says the men forget the letters because their own work is carefully systematized and specialized, so they have no practice and no acquired skill in the performance of little odd jobs like this one, while women, whose jobs are—or were—all little and odd, with no relation one to the other, can assume an almost infinite number of them and forget none, even the new ones. That is a very pretty theory, and it will awaken a vast amount of masculine gratitude. Certainly no man ever thought of that excuse, or of any half as good,—New York Times.

Enthusiasm Run Mad. Enthusiasm Kun Mad.

Enthusiasm, in whatever way it manifests itself, is always delightful to see, and fishermen especially will be interested in the following tale that comes from Paris; While walking along the banks of the Seine the other day a devoted Parisian angler saw a shoat of small fish with shining scales swimming near the surface. Hurrying home, he procured his rod and line, and then went to a butcher shop to get some clotted near the surface. Hurrying home, he procured his rod and line, and then went to a butcher shop to get some clotted blood, which he had always found excellent half. The butcher had an accompany to the state of the lent balt. The butcher had no clotter lent balt. The butterer had no clotted blood—to sell—so this true disciple of Walton resolved to open a vein in his own wrist. He severed an artery, lost a great amount of blood, is now in a hospital—and may live. Here is a story to cheer the heart of the lone fisherman at Princeton.—New York Globe.
